NA LLC,

Plaintiffs,

v.

Vital Pharmaceuticals, Inc., d/b/a Bang
Energy; and Jack Owoc, an individual,

Defendants.

ORDER ON PLAINTIFFS' MOTIONS FOR SUMMARY JUDGMENT

THIS CAUSE is before the Court upon Plaintiffs UMG Recordings, Inc.; Capitol Records, LLC; Universal Music Corp.; Universal Music – Z Tunes LLC; Universal Musica, Inc.; PolyGram Publishing, Inc.; Songs of Universal, Inc.; and Universal Music – MGB NA LLC (collectively, “Plaintiffs”)’s Motion for Partial Summary Judgment [DE 61/82 (sealed)]. The Court has carefully considered the Motion, Defendants Vital Pharmaceuticals, Inc., d/b/a Bang Energy (“Bang”) and Jack Owoc (“Owoc”) (collectively, “Defendants”)’s Response [DE 128], Plaintiffs’ Reply [DE 135], Plaintiffs’ Statement of Undisputed Material Facts [DE 83], Defendants’ Amended Response to Plaintiffs’ Statement of Undisputed Material Facts and Defendants’ Statement of Additional Facts [DE 129], Plaintiffs’ Response to Defendants’ Additional Facts [DE 136], evidence submitted in the record, Defendants’ supplemental filing [DE 200], and is otherwise fully advised in the premises. The Court held a hearing on the Motion on July 8, 2022. See [DE 197].

I. BACKGROUND

All statements in the Background section are derived from uncontested portions of the parties' respective Statements of Material Facts and supporting materials, unless otherwise noted.¹

Plaintiffs UMG Recordings, Inc., ("UMG Recordings") and Capitol Records, LLC ("Capitol") (together, "Record Company Plaintiffs") are engaged in the business of producing sound recordings and distributing, selling, or licensing the reproduction, distribution, sale, preparation of derivative works based upon, and performance of their sound recordings in phonorecords (as defined in 17 U.S.C. § 101), in audiovisual works, and for streaming (i.e., performing) and downloading over the Internet and through other mediums. PSOF ¶ 1; DSOF ¶ 1.² Plaintiffs Universal Music Corp. ("Universal Music"); Universal Music – Z Tunes LLC d/b/a Universal Music – Z Songs ("Z Tunes"); Universal Musica, Inc. d/b/a Universal-Musica Unica ("Musica Unica"); PolyGram Publishing, Inc. ("PolyGram"); Songs of Universal, Inc.

² Plaintiff's Plaintiffs' Statement of Undisputed Material Facts [DE 83], Defendants' Amended Response to Plaintiffs' Statement of Undisputed Material Facts and Defendants' Statement of Additional Facts [DE 129], and Plaintiffs' Response to Defendants' Additional Facts [DE 136] include various citations to portions of the record. Plaintiffs' Statement of Undisputed Material Facts [DE 83] is cited as "PSOF," Defendants' Amended Response to Plaintiffs' Statement of Undisputed Material Facts and Defendants' Statement of Additional Facts [DE 129] is cited as "DSOF," and Plaintiffs' Response to Defendants' Additional Facts [DE 136] is cited as "PRSOF." Any citations herein to the statements of facts should be construed as incorporating those citations to the record.

(“Songs of Universal”); and Universal Music - MGB NA LLC (“MGB NA”) (collectively, “Music Publisher Plaintiffs”) are music publishers engaged in the business of acquiring, owning, publishing, administering, licensing, and otherwise exploiting copyrights in musical compositions. PSOF ¶ 2; DSOF ¶ 2. Plaintiffs’ catalogs of copyrighted musical works are extremely valuable and encompass works composed or performed by an array of world-renowned songwriters and artists, including Ariana Grande, Billie Eilish, Drake, Diana Ross, Justin Timberlake, The Jackson 5, Justin Bieber, J. Balvin, The Beach Boys, Nicki Minaj, and Post Malone. PSOF ¶ 3; DSOF ¶ 3.

Defendant Vital Pharmaceuticals, Inc., d/b/a Bang Energy (“Bang”) is an energy drink and sports nutrition supplement company. PSOF ¶ 4; DSOF ¶ 4. Defendant Jack Owoc is Chief Executive Officer of Vital Pharmaceuticals, Inc. PSOF ¶ 5; DSOF ¶ 5.

Bang does not use “traditional” marketing—no print advertisements, billboards, television commercials, or digital ads like Google. PSOF ¶ 6; DSOF ¶ 6. Bang uses only social media and experiential events for marketing, and Bang has a “successful” social media following. PSOF ¶ 7; DSOF ¶ 7. Bang gives consideration to social media influencers (“Bang Influencers”), some with tens of millions of followers, to market Bang’s products in videos posted on various social media websites, including TikTok. PSOF ¶ 8; DSOF ¶ 8. Bang owns the videos that Bang Influencers create under their agreement, either through a work for hire arrangement or assignment to Bang. PSOF ¶ 9; DSOF ¶ 9.

Bang Influencers have used copyrighted music in their TikTok videos. PSOF ¶ 10; DSOF ¶ 10.³ Bang also posts videos directly on its own TikTok accounts. PSOF ¶ 11; DSOF ¶ 11. Bang has four official TikTok accounts: (1) Bang Energy , (2) Vooz, (3) Redline Energy, and (4)

Meg Liz Swim.. PSOF ¶ 12; DSOF ¶ 12. Bang's primary TikTok account (username @bangenergy) was created sometime before March 2020. PSOF ¶ 13; DSOF ¶ 13. Bang has posted videos utilizing Plaintiffs' copyrighted musical works on its official TikTok accounts. PSOF ¶ 14; DSOF ¶ 14.⁴

Jack Owoc has an official TikTok account (username @bangenergy.ceo), which references him as Bang's CEO. PSOF ¶ 15; DSOF ¶ 15. Jack Owoc has posted videos utilizing Plaintiffs' copyrighted musical works on his official TikTok account. PSOF ¶ 16; DSOF ¶ 16.⁵

Bang considers the Bang Influencers' videos to be advertisements for Bang and its related products. PSOF ¶ 17; DSOF ¶ 17.⁶ Bang has a social media team that audits the Bang Influencers' videos, including the music that plays with the videos, before the videos are posted. PSOF ¶ 18; DSOF ¶ 18.⁷ As a condition for payment, Bang Influencers are instructed to submit their videos to Bang's auditing team with links to any music, and it is the auditing team's responsibility to ensure that the Bang Influencers' videos conform with Bang's Social Media Guidelines for TikTok. PSOF ¶ 19; DSOF ¶ 19.⁸

The Social Media Guidelines are the only policies and procedures for evaluating the Bang Influencers' videos. PSOF ¶ 20; DSOF ¶ 20. In the Social Media Guidelines, Bang set

forth specific rules for what Bang Influencers must include in their videos, including consuming the product on camera, ensuring that the logo is facing the camera, and what to wear. PSOF ¶ 21; DSOF ¶ 21. The Social Media Guidelines also require Bang Influencers to “tag” both Defendants in their TikTok posts “in order to receive compensation.” PSOF ¶ 22; DSOF ¶ 22. It is “really important” to Bang that Bang Influencers tag Bang and Jack Owoc in their videos so that Bang stays “relevant with [its] fans.” PSOF ¶ 23; DSOF ¶ 23.⁹

Meg Owoc, Senior Director of Marketing at Bang, and Defendant Jack Owoc are the only people who approved the 2019 Social Media Guidelines. PSOF ¶ 24; DSOF ¶ 24.¹⁰ Bang’s Social Media Guidelines for 2020, 2021, and 2022 do not prohibit the use of copyrighted music in Bang Influencers’ videos posted on TikTok. PSOF ¶ 25; DSOF ¶ 25. Social Media Guidelines for 2020, 2021, and 2022 do not address the use of copyrighted music in Bang Influencers’ videos posted on TikTok. DSOF ¶ 64; PRSOF ¶ 64. Meg Owoc did not ask Bang’s in-house legal team if Bang could use copyrighted music in its TikTok videos until after this lawsuit was initiated. PSOF ¶ 27; DSOF ¶ 27. Bang’s Influencer Agreement includes the following term: “c. Elite further warrants that Content provided by Elite under this Agreement is (i) not licensed from a third party, and (ii) original work(s) created and owned by Elite alone.” DSOF ¶ 63; PRSOF ¶ 63.

On December 3, 2020, in-house counsel for Plaintiffs told Gideon Eckhouse (“Eckhouse”), Bang’s Chief Counsel for Intellectual Property, that Plaintiffs would “love to sort out the attached list of unauthorized uses by Bang Energy for use on TikTok.” PSOF ¶ 28; DSOF

¶ 28.¹¹ Six days later, Joan Cho, Plaintiffs’ in-house counsel, sent an email to Eckhouse asking him to preserve evidence relating to Bang’s use of Plaintiff Universal’s music. PSOF ¶ 29; DSOF ¶ 29.¹²

Eckhouse made no attempt to ascertain whether Bang had any license to use Plaintiffs’ music. PSOF ¶ 31; DSOF ¶ 31.¹³ Eckhouse responded to Cho that Bang’s “understanding is that TikTok provides use of these songs and others with a license to all of its members. PSOF ¶ 32; DSOF ¶ 32.”¹⁴

On January 22, 2021, Cho responded to Eckhouse, quoting language from TikTok’s terms and conditions: “No rights are licensed with respect to sound recordings and the musical works embodied therein that are made available from or through the service.” PSOF ¶ 33; DSOF ¶ 33. Cho sent two follow up emails to Eckhouse in February 2021 but did not receive a response from Eckhouse until February 19, when he said that Bang does “not agree with [Plaintiffs’] claims or contentions.” PSOF ¶ 34; DSOF ¶ 34. Defendants never agreed to remove the allegedly infringing TikTok Videos or otherwise discuss settlement of Plaintiffs’ copyright infringement claim. PSOF ¶ 35; DSOF ¶ 35.¹⁵

In September 2021, about five months after this litigation began, a well-known social media influencer, Young Park p/k/a Q Park (“Park”), posted a TikTok video marketing Bang’s brand and product. PSOF ¶ 36; DSOF ¶ 36.¹⁶ Park’s video used Plaintiffs’ copyrighted music—

¹¹ The Court uses the wording cited in the record evidence rather than a rephrasing.

¹² The Court agrees with Defendants that the evidence cited by Plaintiffs as to this asserted fact is limited to Plaintiff Universal.

¹⁴ The Court uses the wording cited in the record evidence rather than a rephrasing.

Defendants posted approximately 140 TikTok videos with portions of Plaintiffs’ copyrighted works, which are described by performing artist, title, date of posting, and Defendants’ Bates Number (VPX-UMG). PSOF ¶ 38; DSOF ¶ 38.¹⁸ After this lawsuit was filed, Defendants rendered the allegedly infringing TikTok videos publicly inaccessible. PSOF ¶ 39; DSOF ¶ 39.¹⁹ Prior to Defendants making the subject videos inaccessible, Joan Cho and her team searched for and viewed the videos and prepared a chart with URL links for each video when the links were active. PSOF ¶ 40; DSOF ¶ 40.²⁰ Plaintiffs’ production in this case included, but was not limited to, 92 videos downloaded or otherwise captured from TikTok at UMG000263- UMG000354. DSOF ¶ 59; PRSOF ¶ 59. The videos linked in the chart in Exhibit D to Cho’s declaration,²¹ see [DE 58-4], used true reproduced, prepared derivative works, or publicly displayed Plaintiffs’ Copyrighted Works as those works are identified by artist and title in the chart. Plaintiffs now move for partial summary judgment in their favor as to the issue of liability. See [DE 61/82 (sealed)].

II. STANDARD OF REVIEW

Under Rule 56(a), “[t]he court shall grant summary judgment if the movant shows that there is no genuine dispute as to any material fact and the movant is entitled to judgment as a matter of law.” Fed. R. Civ. P. 56(a). The movant bears “the stringent burden of establishing the absence of a genuine issue of material fact.” Suave v. Lamberti, 597 F. Supp. 2d 1312, 1315 (S.D. Fla. 2008) (citing Celotex Corp. v. Catrett, 477 U.S. 317, 323 (1986)).

“A fact is material for the purposes of summary judgment only if it might affect the outcome of the suit under the governing law.” Kerr v. McDonald’s Corp., 427 F.3d 947, 951 (11th Cir. 2005) (internal quotations omitted). Furthermore, “[a]n issue [of material fact] is not ‘genuine’ if it is unsupported by the evidence or is created by evidence that is ‘merely colorable’ or ‘not significantly probative.’” Flamingo S. Beach I Condo. Ass’n, Inc. v. Selective Ins. Co. of Southeast, 492 F. App’x 16, 26 (11th Cir. 2013) (quoting Anderson v. Liberty Lobby, Inc., 477 U.S. 242, 249–50 (1986)). “A mere scintilla of evidence in support of the nonmoving party’s position is insufficient to defeat a motion for summary judgment; there must be evidence from which a jury could reasonably find for the non-moving party.” Id. at 26-27 (citing Anderson, 477 U.S. at 252). Accordingly, if the moving party shows “that, on all the essential elements of its case on which it bears the burden of proof at trial, no reasonable jury could find for the nonmoving party” then “it is entitled to summary judgment unless the nonmoving party, in response, comes forward with significant, probative evidence demonstrating the existence of a triable issue of fact.” Rich v. Sec’y, Fla. Dept. of Corr., 716 F.3d 525, 530 (11th Cir. 2013) (citation omitted).

III. DISCUSSION

In their Motion for Partial Summary Judgment, Plaintiffs contend that they are entitled to partial summary judgment in their favor as to liability for copyright infringement, as to their claims against Defendants for direct infringement (Counts I and II) and their claims against Bang for contributory and/or vicarious infringement (Counts III and IV) for the influencer videos.

A plaintiff asserting a copyright infringement claim must show: “(1) ownership of a valid copyright, and (2) copying of constituent elements of the work that are original.” Feist Publ’ns, Inc. v. Rural Telephone Serv. Co., Inc., 499 U.S. 340, 361 (1991). If ownership is established and “subjective determinations regarding the similarity between two works” are not required of the fact finder, then “summary judgment is appropriate” on a copyright infringement claim. See Peter Letterese and Assocs., Inc. v. World Inst. of Scientology Enter., 533 F.3d 1287, 1302 (11th Cir. 2008) (citing Herzog v. Castle Rock Entm’t, 193 F.3d 1241, 1247 (11th Cir. 1999)).

Here, Plaintiffs contend that there is no genuine dispute as to either element of copyright infringement and therefore that they are entitled to partial summary judgment as to the issue of liability. As set forth below, based upon the undisputed material facts, the evidence in the record, and the parties’ arguments, Plaintiffs are entitled to partial summary judgment against Defendants as to the issue of liability as to their claims for direct infringement (Counts I and II). However, Plaintiffs are not entitled to summary judgment for their claims for contributory and/or vicarious infringement against Bang for the influencer videos (Counts III and IV).

1. Plaintiffs Own or Control the Subject Copyrights

As an initial matter, it is undisputed that Plaintiffs own and/or control valid copyrights for the Copyrighted Recordings and Copyrighted Compositions at issue in this case, as Plaintiffs have established ownership or an exclusive license for each of the subject copyrighted musical works. See supra PSOF ¶¶43-53; DSOF ¶¶43-53.

2. Direct Infringement (Counts I & II)

It is also undisputed that Defendants posted approximately 140 TikTok videos utilizing portions of Plaintiffs' copyrighted works, which are described by performing artist, title, and date of posting. See supra PSOF ¶¶38, 40, 41; DSOF ¶¶38, 40, 41, 59; PRSOF ¶ 59; [DE 58-4].

"Courts have found that the unauthorized reproduction, distribution, and public performance of sound recordings via the internet violates the Copyright Act." UMG Recording, Inc. v. Escape Media Grp., Inc., No. 11 CIV. 8407, 2014 WL 5089743, at *19 (S.D.N.Y. Sept. 29, 2014).

Therefore, in this case, the fact finder need not make any subjective determinations regarding the similarity between two works to establish the second element of a copyright infringement claim, copying of constituent elements of the work that are original. See, e.g., UMG Recordings, Inc. v. Grande Commc'ns Networks, LLC, 384 F. Supp. 3d 743, 761 (W.D. Tex. 2019) (holding that "a side-by-side comparison might be probative" where plaintiffs allege that their copyrights were infringed by the creation of substantially similar, but not identical, derivative works, which might raise a question of substantial similarity," but is not required where the plaintiffs are instead asserting that their copyrights were infringed by distribution of exact copies of their works).

Both elements of a direct copyright infringement claim having been established based upon the undisputed material facts, see Feist Publ'ns, 499 U.S. at 361, Plaintiffs are entitled to partial summary judgment as to the issue of liability as to their claims for direct infringement (Counts I and II). "Copyright infringement is a strict liability offense, meaning the '[t]he copyright owner need not prove any knowledge or intent on the part of the [d]efendant to establish liability for copyright infringement.'" Joe Hand Promotions, Inc. v. Phillips, No. 19-21723-CIV, 2020 WL 3404964, at *2 (S.D. Fla. June 19, 2020) (quoting Playboy Enterprises, Inc. v. Starware Pub. Corp., 900 F. Supp. 433, 436 (S.D. Fla. 1995)) (emphasis in original). Accordingly, Defendants argument that they believed that TikTok gave them a license to use

Plaintiffs' copyrighted musical works is, at most, relevant to the issue of damages, not to the issue of liability.

3. Contributory and/or Vicarious Infringement (Counts III & IV)

It is also undisputed that the Bang Influencers posted eight TikTok videos utilizing Plaintiffs' copyrighted works, including: "Jingle Bell Rock" by Bobby Helms; "Pineapple" by Karol G; "Poof Be Gone" by KyleYouMadeThat; "Me Too" by Meghan Trainor; "Baby Got Back" by Sir Mix a Lot; "Dinero" by Tinidad Cardona; "Como La Flor" by Selena; and "ily (I Love You Baby)" by Surf Mesa. See PSOF ¶42; DSOF ¶42; [DE 58-4].³³

In Counts III and IV Plaintiffs contend that Bang is also liable for contributory and/or vicarious copyright infringement for the influencer videos. Count III is pled by the Record Company Plaintiffs against Bang and Count IV is pled by the Music Publisher Company Plaintiffs against Bang. See [DE 1] at ¶¶ 63-70; ¶¶ 71-78. The Court addresses each of these secondary or indirect liability theories, in turn. However, the Court notes that "the Eleventh Circuit recognizes that there are no clear distinctions between these various theories of liability. Michael Grecco Prods., Inc. v. RGB Ventures, LLC, No. 3:16-CV-1335-J-34PDB, 2017 WL 4077045, at *5 (M.D. Fla. Sept. 14, 2017) (citing Casella v. Morris, 820 F.2d 362, 365 (11th Cir. 1987) (quoting Sony Corp. v. Universal City Studios, Inc., 464 U.S. 417, 435 (1984) ("[T]he lines between direct infringement, contributory infringement and vicarious liability are not clearly drawn."))).

a. Contributory Copyright Infringement for the Influencer Videos

“One infringes contributorily by intentionally inducing or encouraging direct infringement.” Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer Studios Inc. v. Grokster, Ltd., 545 U.S. 913, 930 (2005). See also Cambridge Univ. Press v. Patton, 769 F.3d 1232, 1242 n.6 (11th Cir. 2014) (“A claim of contributory copyright infringement arises against one who intentionally induces or encourages the direct infringement of another.”). See, e.g., Michael Grecco Prods., 2017 WL 4077045, at *5 (allegations, taken together, of providing the means for the third-party distributors to infringe plaintiff’s copyrights, actually assisting in the distribution of the copyrighted material pursuant to its marketing and sub-license agreements with the third-party distributors, and failing to act to prevent further infringement when it was in a position to do so, sufficient to state a plausible claim for contributory infringement).

In the present case, Plaintiffs argue that Bang is liable for contributory copyright infringement because the undisputed facts demonstrate that Bang intentionally induced and encouraged the Bang Influencers to create and post videos on TikTok promoting Bang’s products and incorporating Plaintiffs’ copyrighted music. In support, Plaintiffs cite to the following undisputed facts:

Bang considers the Bang Influencers’ videos to be advertisements for Bang and its related products. PSOF ¶ 17; DSOF ¶ 17.³⁴ Bang has a social media team that audits the Bang Influencers’ videos, including the music that plays with the videos, before the videos are posted. PSOF ¶ 18; DSOF ¶ 18.³⁵ As a condition for payment, Bang Influencers are instructed to submit their videos to Bang’s auditing team with links to any music, and it is the auditing team’s responsibility to ensure that the Bang Influencers' videos conform with Bang's Social Media Guidelines for TikTok. PSOF ¶ 19; DSOF ¶ 19.³⁶ The Social Media Guidelines are the only policies and procedures for evaluating the Bang Influencers' videos. PSOF ¶ 20; DSOF ¶ 20. In the Social Media Guidelines, Bang set forth specific rules for what Bang Influencers must include in their videos, including consuming the product on camera, ensuring that the logo is facing the camera, and what to wear. PSOF ¶ 21; DSOF ¶ 21. The Social Media Guidelines also require Bang Influencers to "tag" both Defendants in their TikTok posts "in order to receive compensation." PSOF ¶ 22; DSOF ¶ 22.

In response, Bang argues that, even if the foregoing were undisputed, Plaintiffs' claim for contributory infringement fails because Bang has introduced evidence that Defendants have no part in the production of third-party influencer videos and do not select or have any input regarding the selection of music included in influencers' TikTok videos.³⁷

In reply, Plaintiffs do not meaningfully respond to this argument in the context of contributory infringement, and instead conflate it with the theory of vicarious infringement, as follows:

Bang contends that it cannot be indirectly liable for the Influencer Videos because it did not produce the videos or select the music. (See Opp. 10). However, "vicarious liability may exist even if the third party was in no way directly involved in the actual copying." Rams v. Def Jam Recordings, Inc., 202 F. Supp. 3d 376, 384 (S.D.N.Y. 2016) (citing Ez-Tix, Inc. v. Hit-Tix, Inc., 919 F. Supp. 728, 733 (S.D.N.Y. 1996)). Thus, Bang can be liable even if the Bang Influencers produced the videos and selected the music.

[DE 135] at p. 5. Because Plaintiffs failed to respond to Bang’s argument and evidence directed at the theory of contributory copyright infringement, the Court finds Plaintiffs are not entitled to summary judgment as to their theory of contributory copyright infringement against Bang in Counts III and IV.

b. Vicarious Copyright Infringement for the Influencer Videos

“One infringes vicariously by profiting from direct infringement while declining to exercise a right to stop or limit it.” Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer Studios Inc. v. Gorkster, Ltd., 545 U.S. 913, 930 (2005) (citations omitted). Vicarious infringement requires both a direct financial benefit from the direct infringement and the “right and ability to supervise a party responsible for direct infringement.” Latele Television, C.A. v. Telemundo Commc’ns Grp., LLC, No. 12-22539-CIV, 2014 WL 7272974, at *5 (S.D. Fla. Dec. 18, 2014) (citing Perfect 10, Inc. v. Amazon.com, Inc., 508 F.3d 1146, 1173 (9th Cir. 2007) “[T]o succeed in imposing vicarious liability, a plaintiff must establish that the defendant exercises the requisite control over the direct infringer and that the defendant derives a direct financial benefit from the direct infringement.... [T]he ‘control’ element [is satisfied by a plaintiff showing that] a defendant ... has both a legal right to stop or limit the directly infringing conduct, as well as the practical ability to do so.”). “[V]icarious liability may exist even if the third party was in no way directly involved in the actual copying.” Rams v. Def Jam Recordings, Inc., 202 F. Supp. 3d 376, 385 (S.D.N.Y. 2016).

Here, Plaintiffs argue that the undisputed facts demonstrate both requirements – requisite control and direct financial benefit – and therefore that Bang is liable for vicarious copyright infringement.

First, regarding Bang’s alleged failure to exercise a right to stop or limit the Bang Influencer’s direct infringement, Plaintiffs argue Bang knew or should have known about the Bang Influencer’s infringement since it had the right to review each Influencer Video before it was posted and Bang had the ability to refuse to pay any Bang Influencers who posted videos containing infringing music, but failed to do so. Specifically, Plaintiffs point out that Bang has a social media team that audits the Bang Influencers' videos, including the music that plays with the videos, before the videos are posted. PSOF ¶ 18; DSOF ¶ 18. And, as a condition for payment, Bang Influencers are instructed to submit their videos to Bang's auditing team with links to any music, and it is the auditing team's responsibility to ensure that the Bang Influencers' videos conform with Bang's Social Media Guidelines for TikTok. PSOF ¶ 19; DSOF ¶ 19. Plaintiffs contend that Bang had the right to stop or limit the infringement by refusing to approve videos and refusing to pay the Bang Influencers, citing to PSOF ¶ 22; DSOF ¶ 22 (The Social Media Guidelines also require Bang Influencers to "tag" both Defendants in their TikTok posts "in order to receive compensation."), evidencing that Bang has a right to withhold compensation for failure to comply with Bang's policies, and Bang declined to do so. Plaintiffs also assert that Bang did not even attempt to stop the Bang Influencers from using Plaintiffs' copyrighted music after this lawsuit was filed and that, as a result, the Bang Influencers continued to infringe Plaintiffs' copyrights in their videos promoting Bang's products. Plaintiffs cite the undisputed fact that in September 2021, about five months after this litigation began, a well-known social media influencer, Young Park p/k/a Q Park ("Park"), posted a TikTok video marketing Bang's brand and product. PSOF ¶ 36; DSOF ¶ 36.³⁸ Park's video used Plaintiffs' copyrighted music—"Baby Got Back" by Sir Mix a Lot. Id. Plaintiffs note that it is undisputed that Park's video was vetted and approved by Bang, see PSOF ¶ 37; DSOF ¶ 37³⁹, despite Bang's ability to decline to approve Influencer videos prior to their publication.

In response, Bang argues that Plaintiffs present no evidence that would tend to establish that Defendants have any sort of legal right, let alone practical ability, to stop influencers from posting the allegedly infringing videos. Based upon the undisputed material facts referenced in the preceding paragraph, the Court disagrees. The Court finds that Plaintiffs have met their burden at summary judgment as to the requisite control element of vicarious infringement claim based on Bang's failure to exercise its right to stop or limit the Bang Influencer's direct infringement.

The second element of a vicarious infringement claim is direct financial benefit. For purposes of vicarious liability, a financial benefit does not have to be "substantial." Rams, 202 F. Supp. 3d at 385 (citing Ellison v. Robertson, 357 F.3d 1072, 1079 (9th Cir. 2004)). "Financial benefit exists where the availability of infringing material 'acts as a draw for customers.'" Id. (quoting A & M Records, Inc. v. Napster Inc., 239 F.3d 1004, 1023 (9th Cir. 2001)).

Plaintiffs state in their summary judgment motion, without citing to any record evidence, that "Bang has profited from the Influencer Videos by dramatically expanding its social media reach and increasing its profits." [DE 82] at p. 11. In response, Bang points out that Plaintiffs fail to present evidence that indicates how, or even that, Bang received any financial benefit as a result of the eight (8) third-party videos that infringe Plaintiffs' copyrights. In reply, Plaintiffs argue for the first time that, while the exact amount of damage caused by the Influencer Videos will be established at trial (including through expert testimony), Plaintiffs have ample evidence that Bang received direct financial benefit from the Influencer Videos, and then go on for the first time in their reply brief to point to such evidence.⁴⁰ Because Plaintiffs failed to raise these that Plaintiffs' asserted undisputed fact ¶137 is supported by evidence in the record, the Court will deem admitted Plaintiffs' fact ¶137. See [DE 133].

⁴⁰ Plaintiff states, with no record citation, that the Influencer Videos have been viewed and liked millions of times. Next, Plaintiffs point to evidence cited in Plaintiffs' Response to Defendants' Statement of Material Facts [DE 98], which is entirely outside of the scope of briefing the instant arguments and evidence in Plaintiffs’ motion for summary judgment in support of the required element of direct financial benefit for Plaintiffs’ vicarious infringement claim, they are impermissible and will not be considered at this juncture. See, e.g. Herring v. Secretary, Department of Corrections, 397 F.3d 1338, 1342 (11th Cir. 2005) (“As we have repeatedly admonished, arguments raised for the first time in a reply brief are not properly before a reviewing court.”) (internal quotes omitted).

Based on the foregoing, Plaintiffs have not established the second element of a vicarious infringement claim, direct financial benefit. Accordingly, Plaintiffs are not entitled to summary judgment as to their theory of vicarious copyright infringement in Counts III and IV.

IV. CONCLUSION

Accordingly, it is ORDERED AND ADJUDGED that Plaintiffs’ Motion for Partial Summary Judgment [DE 61/82 (sealed)] is GRANTED IN PART AND DENIED IN PART as follows:

1. As to Counts I and II: Plaintiffs are entitled to partial summary judgment as to the issue of liability on their claims against Defendants for direct infringement;
2. As to Counts III and IV:
 - (a) With regard to the theory of Contributory Copyright Infringement for the Influencer Videos against Bang, Plaintiffs are not entitled to summary judgment.
 - (b) With regard to the theory of Vicarious Copyright Infringement for the motion, Plaintiffs’ Motion for Partial Summary Judgment [DE 61/82 (sealed)] to submit that (1) Bang’s revenue and brand power increased due to its use of popular music on TikTok in its videos, including Defendants’ use of Plaintiffs’ copyrighted works in Defendants’ TikTok videos and (2) Bang saved a substantial amount of money by failing to pay five-figure license fees to use Plaintiffs’ famous copyrighted musical works in their advertisements. Plaintiffs also note that the influencer agreements reveal that Bang pays a 15% commission to its influencers on all sales of Bang’s products sold with that influencer’s discount code and argue that Bang therefore is aware of revenue directly generated by the Bang Influencers.

Influencer Videos against Bang, Plaintiffs are not entitled to summary judgment for failure to meet their burden as to the direct financial benefit element.

However, Plaintiffs have established at summary judgment the requisite control element of their vicarious infringement claim.
